

APPLYING TO JOIN LIST A BARRISTERS

Who can apply?

List A encourages applications from people who are proposing to undertake the Victorian Bar Readers' course.

How many new members does List A take per year?

The Rules of List A impose a cap on the number of total members on the List at any one time. This means that from time to time there may be no places available on the List.

Therefore, List A looks to the quality of each applicant and to the requirements of the List at the time the application is made. For that reason, there is no fixed number of new members per year.

What does List A look for in a new member?

List A looks for overall excellence in new members. We recognise that no two candidates are alike.

While the following factors are not determinative of whether an applicant will be offered a place on List A, they provide an indication of the matters the List Committee will take into account in making its decision in relation to an application. These factors are not ranked in any particular order and no factor has special weight in the List Committee's consideration:

- quality of academic record;
- nature, quality and length of legal experience;
- intended areas of practice at the Victorian Bar in the context of the composition of the List and its future requirements;
- nature, quality and length of other experience;
- interview performance;
- referees' comments; and
- present numbers of the List.

What is the selection process?

Once an application is received an initial informal meeting will be arranged with the Executive Director of the List, Mr David Andrews. At that meeting Mr Andrews will discuss in greater detail with the applicant the manner in which the List operates, the application and the factors set out above. He will then report to the List Committee which will make a threshold decision whether the applicant will be offered an interview.

The List Committee comprises 7 members of List A elected by members of the List.

The List Committee understands the need for the strictest confidentiality of all applications. All applications are and remain confidential.

If an applicant is offered an interview, they will generally be interviewed by a sub-committee of the List Committee. These interviews will take place in accordance with the Guidelines for applications for places on Lists at the Victorian Bar as published from time to time (the Guidelines).

The Guidelines as they apply to people undertaking the September 2019 Readers' Course appear at the end of this document.

The sub-committee conducting the interview will report back to the List Committee with a recommendation as to whether an applicant should be offered a place on the List. The decision to offer an applicant a place on the List is then made by the full List Committee.

Any member of the List Committee who has a personal or professional tie to an applicant is expected to abstain from the interviewing and voting process in relation to that applicant.

The voting and decision making process is confidential and no correspondence is entered into about the results of the decision-making process.

When should applicants apply?

Readers must make their applications in accordance with the Guidelines. Applications can only be made once the Bar has offered the applicant a place in the Readers' Course.

What List A expects from its new members

The List expects members (and particularly new members) to contribute to the List in the following ways:

- attendance at List A meetings and functions;
- participation in List A promotional activities; and
- participation on List A Boards and Committees.
